

WASHINGTON SCENE DISCUSSED BY FREEDMAN

by Stan Cytrynbaum

"The Washington Scene Today" and in particular the Presidential elections of next summer formed the text of Mr. Max Freedman's talk of Tuesday afternoon. The event, organized by "Scope", was under the chairmanship of Gyde Shepherd.

Since Mr. Freedman had recently attended miniature national conventions of both the Republican and the Democrat parties, he was in an excellent position to deal with the subject of the forthcoming elections. The Republicans, said Mr. Freedman, have "forbidden" any discussion on candidates with the exception of President Eisenhower. He is confident that providing the President is restored to good health, he and Vice-president Nixon will run for the same offices once again.

Stevenson Anxious

In the Democratic field, Adlai Stevenson is prominent. If nominated, Stevenson claims that he would like to run against Eisenhower and he is confident of his party's support.

Harriman and Kefauver

Governor Harriman of New York was mentioned as another possible Democratic candidate. This is likely since every governor of New York in the past 20 years with one exception has played a major role in national affairs. Senator Kefauver would be an excellent candidate, said Mr. Freedman, however his nomination is unlikely due to opposition even from a block of his fellow Southern Senators.

During the question and answer period which followed, a variety of subjects were discussed including the Farm Problem and the Labour situation.

On Campus Debating Begins Successfully

The On Campus debating series got under way yesterday as the team of Bernard Chidzero and Neville Linton edged Clive Allen and Brahm Cambell in a noon-hour contest at the Union.

The topic was: Resolved that to be an effective international organization, the U. N. must interfere in national affairs. The winning team upheld the affirmative. Judge, Brahm Eisenstat, in awarding the decision to Chidzero and Linton pointed out that the negative had failed to undermine the actual essence of the argument as stated by the affirmative.

Next Wednesday there will be what promises to be a battle of wits as Wilson Southam and an as yet unnamed partner will debate against Norman May and Norman Samuels on the topic "Resolved that debating is detrimental to the debater". It will be held at noon at the Union.

McGill Challenged To Outsell U Of M In Treasure Van

(McGill and the University of Montreal are simultaneously running the Treasure Van Sale — a WUSC endeavor to aid foreign students. The University of Montreal has tendered the following challenge.)

Messieurs les Redmen:

Not satisfied with having defeated you in the Blood Donor Clinic Drive, we are again determined to prove that we are invincible. Since we are convinced that we will be able to better your proceeds in the Treasure Van Sale, we challenge you to outsell us.

We wish you the best of luck in your undertaking. But bear in mind that your rivals are still "les terribles carabins de la montagne" . . . Here the money is pouring in and the customers are swelling in numbers. We anxiously await the results of Friday night!

A bientôt,

Clement Richer,

Chairman, WUSC, U of M.

Entries Open For Novice Debating Tournament

Registration for the Arts and Science Novice Debating Tournament, which will take place in January and February, is now open.

The tournament is an elimination competition for the ASUS Novice Debating Cup, the major award for novice teams at McGill. Anyone in the Faculties of Arts and Science who is in the first year at McGill, or who has little or no previous university debating experience, is eligible, but only teams may enter; single entries will not be considered.

All entries should be handed in to George at the Tuck Shop and marked "ASUS Debating", and should state the name, year, and phone number of both debaters. A registration form may also be found on the Union Notice Board near the Grillroom.

Co-chairmen of ASUS Debating, Herman Gelber and Norman Samuels, urge all those interested to enter the competition, as it gives debaters some very valuable experience, good criticism, and a chance to learn much, win or lose.

For further information, call Norm Samuels at RE. 7-0733; all entries must be in before December 20.

WEST INDIAN PARTY

West Indians and their friends will hold their Christmas Party in the Union Ballroom on Wednesday Dec. 21.

Al Cowans and his orchestra will provide music, and admission will be $1 per person and $1.50 per couple, with members in good standing receiving a 50 per cent reduction on the single rate.

A meeting of the Society will be held in the Union Lounge on Monday, Dec. 12 at 8:30 pm, to discuss final plans.

To be featured in the MWSAA sponsored Friday and Saturday Water Show are the Lindsay twins. The twins have collected numerous honors between them including the Dominion doubles synchronized swimming championship.

ARTS AND CRAFTS WINNERS CHOSEN

Dr. A. Lismer, Director of the Adult Education Centre at the Museum of Fine Arts, and Professor Stuart Wilson today announced the winners in the tenth annual Arts and Crafts Exhibition. All entries will be on view to the student body from December 12 to December 17 in the Walter Stewart Room of the Union.

Results were announced in six separate categories: painting, drawing, photography, crafts, space structure, and sculpture.

Painting

F. E. Campbell of MacDonald College was awarded first prize in the painting section. Her oil painting entitled "Bedside Table" was chosen from among numerous entries. Stig Harvor, Arch. VI, placed second with his water colour entitled "Ottawa Street Scene". Honourable mention was awarded to Frances Wren and David Silverberg.

Drawing

The first prize for drawing was awarded to Miss A. Lan, B. Arch. I, for her Chinese water colour "The Crab". Branco Paskulin and J. Nagy won honorable mention in this class.

Photography

The photography class had a great many entries, all of very fine calibre. E. J. Beauprie, a fourth year dentistry student, was declared the winner in this class. Michel Choquette, Jean Cairnie, and Arthur Y. Smith drew honorable mention from Dr. Lismer and Professor Wilson for their efforts.

Space Sculpture

The entries in this class were extremely colourful and interesting. V. Virah, B. Arch 5, was awarded first prize for his "Light Structure" while Radoslav Zuk's "Exhi-

Painting By Tanabe On Display Today

A number of paintings by the young Japanese-Canadian artist, Takao Tanabe, are on display in the Exhibition Room of the Architecture Building until December 10. The exhibition includes works in oil, pastel and water colour.

Mr. Tanabe was born in Prince Rupert, British Columbia, and he received his art education in Winnipeg, New York and London, he was awarded the 1953-54 Emily Carr Scholarship and this enabled him to study abroad.

This is Mr. Tanabe's first exhibition in Montreal although he has had several others all across Canada. In 1953 some of his paintings were shown in the Canadian section of the Sao Paulo Biennial Exhibition in Brazil and he has also had displays in the National Gallery Group Show. The National Gallery recently bought two of his works, an oil and a watercolour for their collection.

Exhibition Stand" won honorable mention.

Crafts

Luba Zuk, a member of MacDonald College's music staff, won first prize in the crafts division for her embroidered table mat. Honourable mention was given to D. Beauprie, Marjory Shants and M. A. Damargue for their assorted handicrafts.

John Kennerley, chairman of this year's exhibition, stated that the entries all are worth seeing and urges all students to attend. The formal opening will be held on Monday at 1 pm with Dean Thompson attending as guest of honour.

Carpet Unrolled In Moyse Hall

The fourth annual Flying Carpet opened in Moyse Hall last night.

After a mystifying opening Mike Dodman and his boys gave us some American folk music. The rhythm and spirit would have been better received had the audience been warmed up. Following them was the Hungarian group, whose native dances were well prepared. Irene Akos stood out in this segment, with gypsy dance. Canada was next, represented by The Merry Martlets. The singing was good, but showed lack of enthusiasm.

Next we went to Ethiopia for a glimpse of a culture unknown to most of us. A fine collection of national songs greeted us. The group enjoyed themselves immensely, and was one of the evening's highlights. The Armenians then gave a descriptive introduction which could well be imitated by some of the other groups. Some strangely fascinating folk songs were presented; the group was perfectly at ease, especially the soloist and in their beautiful costumes brought the first half to an exciting climax.

The second half opened with two Ukrainian dance from the Poltava region and were characterized by much vitality.

The Gold Coast group gave us some excellent examples of African mysticism with a war song, a dance, a vocal effect of drumming and a national Gold Coast song. Next the Greek dancing group with piano accompaniment performed the Kalamatianos, with its origin in Peloponessos, the Tsamikos, a mountain dance, the Kritikos, danced in Crete and hailing from ancient times, and the Balos a courting dance originating from Venice.

The Japanese group gave us two national songs. The Israeli group was well rehearsed.

U OF M STUDENTS RAID CITY HALL

University of Montreal students staged an orderly march to City Hall, yesterday, to protest the recent raise in the City tramway fares. Six hundred students congregated around the Medical Building of the University of Montreal at 1:30 pm and proceeded to the City Hall singing as they marched.

Mayor Jean Drapeau made an appearance before the students at City Hall and assured them that the City Council was doing everything possible to amend the situation.

University of Montreal's Students' Society president, Giles Legault, was quoted as saying, "the march was a carefully controlled manifestation of the students' sincere objection to the raise in the price of tram tickets."

OUT IN THE COLD

We met a young lady the other day, unfortunately we met her in the freezing night air. This particular young lady lives in that Sherbrooke Street fortress, RVC. Her gentleman callers are not permitted to wait in the building after 10:30 in the evening, and consequently must suffer the rigors of a Montreal winter as a penalty for paying her court.

It does seem slightly unfair to allow a young lady out in the evening for coffee and at the same time practically insure that she goes unescorted. No one knows what perils and temptations attend young ladies alone on the streets at night.

If RVC is to be a home away from home a hearth, where evening callers may warm their hands, might add to the home-like atmosphere.

FORGE CONTRIBUTIONS

It was perhaps a pity that Forge could not come out this month, as it was supposed to do. But, as we said before, the editors did not think that the issue would have justified itself. There was much good material but not enough; and the plunge was taken in favour of one big issue instead of two smaller and more uncertain ones.

The point of all this should certainly be clear — we want more contributions. The deadline has been extended considerably: students have till the end of January instead of October as was the case before. (This is on the new posters.) Now, if a worthy magazine is to be put out (and we think we have the makings of quite a good one) advantage must be taken of this extra writing time.

Mr. John Lachs reopened the Forge-Faculty question the day before yesterday and he deserves a reply. His main desire is that Forge should extend its scope. He doesn't say why Forge should do so and I, for one, can't think of a reason. Rather, I think Forge has done very well as it is (for the past eighteen consecutive years, it should be remembered) and that to extend its "scope" would be a mistake. In fact, and this is said with respect, I think that to tamper with Forge by expanding it into a joint student-professor undertaking would be the worst thing that one could do to it.

My view is that providing a yearly record of the literary output of McGill students is an extremely valuable and important activity in itself and one eminently worthy of all Forge's resources. Which is not to say that we should not have a quarterly. We should. But we should have Forge too. And I submit that to think that Forge could be expanded into that quarterly is little short of naive.

If McGill is to have a quarterly — and pray it shall — it will not, I can but feel, be made by students: they can't even make a quorum. And to attempt to create such a University magazine by, in effect, destroying a perfectly good student magazine (for that is what it will amount to) is more than I can go along with.

In short, student writing and student writers are quite good enough in themselves to have their own magazine. Forge is that magazine and has been for a long time, I sincerely hope that it will continue to be so.

But Forge is not the only outlet for McGill's literary output: besides the Fig Leaf there is the annual Literary Supplement of the Daily which will shortly be putting some of this output on view. Let us hope that this diversity of mediums proves as healthy as it should and that our writers get busy. It's later than we all think.

Jim Brierley,
Editor of Forge.

MCGILL DAILY EDITORIAL BOARD

Jim Lotz, a graduate student in Geography, has his degree from Manchester University, England, where he was Assistant Editor of the Manchester News-Bulletin. He has held many jobs, from opera extra to trader in West Africa, from grouse beater to advertising copy writer. At McGill he is active in debating and on the judo team.

John Sanderson is a member of the Winter Carnival executive and the Scarlet Key and participates in debating. He is also on the senior track and boxing teams. Born in Ottawa, he has attended schools in England, the States and Canada. He entered McGill with a public speaking scholarship, and plans to take a degree in Law.

Fred Lowy, a former Associate Editor and Managing Editor of The Daily, is in first year Medicine. Born in Austria, Lowy has lived there and in Portugal, the States and Canada. He spent a year in Israel on a scholarship. He is a McGill graduate in honors Psychology.

Gyde Shepherd is the Chairman of SCOPE, and has worked on that organization for two years. He has also been on The Daily, the Red and White Revue and the Newman Club executive. He was born in Montreal, and attended Ashbury College in Ottawa as well as schools in the States and England.

Ann Peacock, president of the McGill Music Club, is active in the Choral Society and the Literary and Philosophical Society and is one of the editors of Forge. She tied for first place in the senior debating trials. She was born in Sweden, but has lived most of her life in England. She is in honors English.

Wakefield Ward, the Editor-in-Chief of The Figleaf, is chief cartoonist for the Editorial Board. Ward has worked for The Figleaf for two years. He was a member of the Douglas Hall Council, worked on the Open House, and has drawn cartoons for The Daily for several years. He is in Electrical Engineering.

Function Of The Editorial Board

A change in the constitution of the McGill Daily allowing for an Editorial Board was presented to the SEC and approved at its last meeting. The Editorial Board which will in effect establish a new department in the organization of the newspaper, has been successfully conducted on an experimental basis since the start of the session.

Constitutionally, the board will have charge of the editorial columns of the Daily, subject to the approval of the Managing Board. Its membership will include the Managing Board plus no less than five and no more than ten other members chosen from the Students' Society.

The Editorial Board was conceived in order to broaden the scope of the Daily editorial columns. Since its introduction the number of editorials appearing in the newspaper has doubled.

The Board meets once a week during the publishing season. The meeting is conducted as an editorial conference. Here policy is resolved, ideas solidified, and a weekly editorial schedule is drawn up.

The members were chosen by the Managing Board on the basis of their ability and broad outside interests. Board membership must be renewed each year by the succeeding Daily administration.

ATHLETICS NIGHT ON SATURDAY

CAGE SQUAD MEETS PLATTSBURG STATE

The Redmen cagers, under the capable wing of Joe Anderson, will launch the 1955-56 season on Saturday night at 7.30 pm when Plattsburg State Teacher's College invades the Currie Gym.

Although this is their first game of the season, Anderson's charges are resolved to whip their guests. Much of the onus of the task will fall upon lanky bucket-man Leon Duplessis, kingpin of last year's quintet. The 6'4" centre from Dover Plains, N.Y., averaged nineteen points per game last season in intercollegiate play. On the other extreme is Johnny Thompson, a bouncy 5'6" of basketball machinery whose speed and hustle last year delighted Redmen hoopla fans.

The most promising newcomer on the squad is sharp shooting guard Don Wright. The six foot tall Montreal product was leading scorer in the intermediate section last season.

Lou Gordon and Ozzie Zommers, both Montreal products, will likely round out the forward wall. They will be spelled by Fintan Hefferman, George Rosenberg and Tom Leung. Reserve guards will be John Finch, Jerry Kushner and Hugh Raphael while Bob Thomas is the man designated to work from the centre spot when Duplessis is resting.

Poloists Defend Title In Toronto On Saturday

This Saturday, December 10, McGill's senior water poloists travel to the Queen city to defend their Intercollegiate title against the University of Toronto Blues. As a result of their 8-5 win over the Blues last Saturday, the Redmen will carry a three goal lead into this, the second game of the two game total point series.

The Red and White aggregation will have a tough time keeping their lead at the Hart House pool, home of the Blues. The Toronto tank is smaller than the McGill pool and this will limit the advantage of speed that the Redmen have held over all their opponents to date. However, the McGill poloists will play an exhibition game against the YWHA Blues tonight in the narrower Snowdon tank and this may serve to accustom Barry Thompson's boys to the smaller Toronto pool.

For their Toronto match, the Redmen will go with the same starting line-up used in their first game against the Blues. Bernie Toporowski, Charlie Evelyn and Fred Weinstein will start at the forward positions with Robbie Cook going at half. Brahm Gelfand and Art Rosenberg will defend in front of goalie John Duarte-Chabrol. Coach Thompson hasn't as yet decided who the tenth man will be, but it will more than likely be between Maroje Miroslavic and George Easdon.

Tonight's game against the YMHA is called for 8:30 at the Snowdon pool.

SQUASH

McGill's Championship Intercollegiate Squash team will meet the Montreal Jesters on Athletics Night. The Jesters, a team made up of McGill Graduates and some of the better players of the M.A.A.A. are expected to give Al Malloy's squad stiff competition.

Navy Boxers Here

The boxing section of the first Athletics Night this Saturday promises to be a real thriller. A well-manned Navy team, H.M.C.S. Donnaccona, under the tutelage of Tommy Sullivan will invade the Currie Gym.

Six bouts are scheduled and they should provide the McGillians with an excellent warm-up for their defence of the CIAU title at Kingston in February.

Navy will have Golden Gloves champs Eckbert Korzer and Mickey Bergin, who also is a British Empire Games champion. Bergin at 140 lbs. faces McGill's Johnny Fawcett in the first bout. This match should provide plenty of thrills as both boys have had over fifty fights as amateurs.

In other bouts, Joe Puddicombe, at 145 lb., meets the Navy's Brian Falle; Denny Repole, collegiate champ at 155 lb. meets Gerry Ramsay; Herm Kennedy, a former Grenadier Guards boxer at 160 lb. takes on Donnaccona's Keith Smith. At 165 lb. Pierre Raymond of the Redmen meets Ralph O'Donnie while Ozzie Downes of McGill will round out the card with Eckbert Korzer.

Former great athlete Doug Marsh of the AAU will be the referee.

Pucksters Play Varsity; Baltzan Named Captain

Dick Baltzan, Saskatchewan's gift to the hockey Redmen, was named team captain by the other members of the squad yesterday in a democratic vote taken after the team's morning practice. Pete Constable and Brian McCann were named as alternate captains.

Baltzan, a three year veteran of the Redmen, will wear the big "C" on his sweater for the first time on Friday night when the McGillians travel to Toronto to take on the Varsity Blues. Dickie is at present in first year Medical school and thus coach Rocky Robillard hopes to have him skating for the Red and White for a few more seasons.

So far this season Baltzan has three points in the one game played. He had 16 points last year and was top scorer the previous season with 21. Robillard intends to use the same line-up against Varsity as played against U of M and Michigan. Henri Lafleur will probably get the call to don the pads in the Redmen nets.

Tickets On Sale For Christmas Concert

The eleventh annual "Sing at Christmas" concert will be presented by the Choral Society at the Arthur Currie Gymnasium on Saturday, December 17.

Gifford Mitchell is making his twenty-first appearance as Choral Society director. Doris Killam is the accompanist for the seventh year, and the music has been selected from the previous ten concerts to complete the anniversary program.

The concert will be divided into two parts. The opening half will consist of readings from the nativity story by members of McGill's foreign student body dressed in their national costumes, interspersed with appropriate carols and Christmas music.

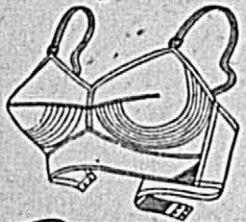

The second section features a reading by Ann Millikin of a Christmas story from "Pickwick Papers". The closing selection will be "The Skaters Waltz" by Waldteufel.

Tickets for the concert may be purchased at the Gymnasium from the ushers on the evening of the performance or from members of the Choral Society.
